HIPAA

The Three-Headed Security

All the covered entities and business associates must have a well-thought-out security plan. The HIPAA Security Rule has three basic components.

1. Administrative Safeguards

These security measures pinpoint the risks; By designating a security officer, executing a plan to prevent unauthorized access, training the hospital staff and supervising them, analyzing the security rules and regulations from time to time, we are well-set on a HIPAA acceptable journey.

2. Technical Safeguards

These security standards mean restricting access to facilities, laptops, desktops, tablets and other mobile devices which contain ePHI. Passing the information through encryption mechanisms is the right way to handle sensitive information.

3. Physical Safeguards

These measures identify the rules and regulations that must be in place to ensure data integrity. The electronic information, buildings, and the equipment need protection from natural and environmental disasters, unauthorized access and any other hazardous events that may jeopardize the patient health information.

Dr. Mostafa Elsakka

It is my pleasure to write a testimonial about the excellent service Stat MD urgent care has received from Nahl Medical billing and coding company. Our practice was in a desperate need of a billing Company that could handle everything from A-Z. In addition, this was provided, with always a generous and kind voice. I was new at this position and was treated with gentle but knowledgeable persons with every need I had. I am thankful for all the help I got from this Company, I appreciate their thorough and perfection in handing our Billing needs. I recommend them to anyone! They are fair in the market pricing, especially for all the times I needed to call upon them and they took their time in explaining to me what I need to do. Thank You to Everyone involved, and especially for those that had the difficult task of attending to our Company's need. You helped us in more ways than you know.

Dr. Rahman Mohammed

I want to thank Sadia khan for your professional help with our accounts receivable. I have absolutely nothing but appreciation for your company in helping us out with the jam we were in when we suddenly quit billing company. Since that time, we have enjoyed an absolutely non-problematic relationship. Our experience with claims, handling insurance rejections, posting our payments, the account receivable process, patient statements, and the excellent service provided to my patients are greatly appreciated. I also sincerely appreciate all the help that you have given my staff and me and I wish you the best of luck in future endeavors.

Dr. Sobia Lodhi

Dr. Talat Tayyaba

Making the switch from our prior biller of several years was both an emotional and stressful task for our group. However, Sadia khan and the rest of her team promised to make the transition as smooth as possible and followed through completely. Just after the first audit/follow-up financial meeting, we were pleasantly surprised to see the additional revenue stream as well as point-by-point comments on billing errors (predominantly under billing in our case) we had been making for years. The Nahl's team constantly updates and educates us on any new changes in billing/coding that are happening or will be happening. They are readily available to follow up on our requests or answer any questions. We are approaching and have no reservations about making the switch, and would highly recommend them to other potential groups seeking a new billing company.
